"..... a contract was drawn up between the South Manchuria Railway Company and the Manchoukuo Government on February 9, 1933, by virtue of which, the former was entrusted with the management of all State Railways, supervision of water traffic on the Sungari, and various subordinate enterprises. Consequently, the South Manchuria Railway created the General Directorate of Railways (Mukden) on March 1, 1933, to manage the various facilities and to meet the demands of the new situation."
